PRESIDENT / CHAIR

Follow up on AGM Motions 2015

The two motions that were sent out to all members for consideration. These were:

1. To update the constitution
2. To adopt the business name of CatsWA

The constitutional changes were sent to DOCEP (Department of Consumer Protection) who have accepted the changes and the revised constitution can now be found on the website.

CatsWA is now in use as our operating name and seems to have been well received. The website has been updated to reflect the changes.

Feline Control Council of WA (Inc) remains our constitutional name and will appear on all official documentation.

FCCWA SECRETARY'S REPORT TO AGM 8 DECEMBER 2014

2014 has been a year of steady growth in membership although our show entries have been down. A lot of us have such a busy lifestyle – having to earn a living gets in the way of our hobbies ! Folks just do not have the time to spare I believe.

The introduction of the WA Cat Laws in November last year, has caused breeders to reduce the number of entire boys and girls and consequently there have been less cats and kittens to show. (With a judge's hat on now – I have to say that it has not adversely affected the excellent quality of our exhibits, so often commented on by visiting judges). The extraordinarily high cattery/registration fees have caused major problems for a lot of us and negatively impacted on the cat fancy without lessening the numbers of strays and abandoned cats. Sadly neither the state nor local authorities seem to be concerned with a lot of local governments simply taking the money with no services in return.

My role as Secretary on Governing Council has been a little 'part time' but with first Diana Nixon and then Lee-anne in the office to look after the memberships, titles and day to day enquiries alongside Carole our 'backbone' of the office, we have got through very well.

Carole Galli has been a tremendous example for us all, not only as our Registrar, but as our President keeping us all in line ! Council has met regularly, and sometimes voted per email on appropriate matters of urgency between meetings. It has been busy but harmonious year for Council. 2014 Councillors were:- Carole Galli, Linda Horton, Pamela Lanigan, Sue Game, Diana Nixon, Delaine Hall, Lee-anne Pitman Pryde, Janis Thomson, Lucy Nikiforos, Rod Pattinson.

Carole is our Executive Member on the ACF – which takes up an extraordinary amount of time and patience. Thanks Carole.

Pamela Lanigan has kept the finances in good order as our Treasurer but due to business commitments, has resigned that position effective end November 2014.

Linda Horton as our Vice President and PR person seems to have a huge capacity for getting things done – she coordinated the revamp of our Constitution, she keeps our web site up to date, she does our quarterly Magazine CAT CALL, and she keeps us informed via email and Facebook. She and Carole have been our main contact with the WA Local Government. She takes amazing photos!

The Oriental Shorthair, Paws and Claws and British Shorthair Cat Clubs have run shows, and FCCWA Council members have run the others. We need our other clubs to get their members together and hold shows next year. Spread the load if we can. 2015 Dates have been reserved for shows – just put up your hand!

I am sure the ACF National Championship show to be held in Perth next year will generate a lot of interest from the public and attract potential new FCCWA members – it is up to us to capitalise on the opportunities.

Our Judge Training has been very active, with assignments happening at every FCCWA show. Pamela Lanigan is close to taking her Group 2 exams and hopefully will be a Group 2 Junior Judge next year. Catherine Gunson has been completing her pre-requisites in show administration and she will be starting Group 2 Training next year too. Carole Galli and Lucy Nikiforos have been doing their Group 3 Cadet assignments and examinations. Delaine Hall and Kirsty Connell have both been granted permission to defer their training due to other life priorities – I hope that they can resume in the not too distant future.

We are building up a great group of local judges to give exhibitors and show organisers a wider choice and enhance our self-sufficiency. Governing Council has approved Lee-anne Pitman Pryde to be elevated to Group 3 Open Judge. Carole Galli and Lucy Nikiforos have passed their Cadet Training and Written Examinations and Governing Council has approved their appointment as Group 3 Junior Judges).

On that positive note, I would like to thank my fellow Councillors for their support, but especially Carole for being our anchor.

Susan Game

Changes to 2015 Governing Council

Lee-Anne Pitman-Pryde and Pamela Lanigan have resigned from Council and Pamela has also resigned her position as Treasurer. We thank them both for their expertise and support and wish them both all the best for their future endeavours.

Welcome to Michelle Harris who has joined Council for the February meeting, and we are very pleased to confirm that Michelle has agreed to take up the Treasurer's Duties.

ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING

Presidents Report 2014

2014 has been a successful year for FCCWA with a full show calendar. Numbers at the first show were lower than expected but for the remainder of the year numbers picked up. We have had a dedicated group of exhibitors and we thank them for their support again this year. One of the biggest issues for FCC has been the cost of show venues. I am pleased to let you know that through members on the RAS committee as a follow up to our letter last year that RAS have agreed to make a Pavilion available to FCC for our shows at the same cost as the Davis Pavilion. The Ellie Eaton Pavilion is near gate one and is a wonderful venue for our shows. This will alleviate a lot of the stress on clubs to find a financially viable venue for shows. In turn I hope that this will mean that we will see more clubs hosting shows next year.

2015 will be an exciting year with the ACF National Show in June. This will be the first ACF National to be held over two days and there will be 8 rings. ACF approved this as we made a strong argument that to attract exhibitors from the Eastern States there needs to be more than a one day show. A small committee has been working hard all year to organise the show, which will be at the Claremont Showgrounds in the Tom Wilding Pavilion. Cat friendly accommodation has been sourced and promoted on the show website and a FB page. Major Sponsors are Proplan for 6 rings and Oz pet for 2 Rings. The committee is working hard to engage more sponsorship and also stallholders to create a market place on the day.

2014 should be called the Year of the Fundraiser. Janis Thompson and her team have run several events to raise funds, including

- High Tea
- Dinner Dance
- ACF National Raffle, which we are drawing tonight
- Tupperware Party – run by Linda Horton
- Sausage Sizzle – run by Julie Pickens
- Jacaranda Festival Nachos Stall
- Kitchen at FCC shows
- Chocolates, chocolates and more chocolates!

Approx. $6000 has been raised to date with a target of $10,000 by show day. This is a mammoth effort and to date only a few members have supported most of the events. I would ask that when raffles etc are running that you help by selling to friends and acquaintances or suggest selling opportunities to the committee so we can capture a larger audience.

FCCWA has had a very strong Judges Training program running over the last 3 years and we must thank Betty Payne and Sue Game who have offered training and support to our trainees at every show as well as at seminars held in our Office. Apart from hands on training assignments this year we have also hosted seminars on Cat Structure, presented by Michele Ristuccia from CVI and Cat Genetics by Dr Isobel Johnstone from FCCQ. Visiting judges were also asked to tutor trainees who were stewarding for them at shows. I am pleased to say that this year we have had Pamela Lanigan appointed as an Open Gp 3 Judge, Lee-anne Pitman – Pryde appointed as an open Gp 3 judge and Lucy Nikiforos and Carole Galli appointed as Junior Gp 3 judges after passing exams in November. We also have two trainee Gp 1 judges, Delaine Hall and Kirsty Connell plus Pamela and Lee-anne training in Gp 2. This is a wonderful achievement for FCC. Hopefully by the end of 2015 we will have another All Breeds judge. We have a loyal membership of breeders and exhibitors. This year there have been 200 more registrations than in 2013, despite there being less breeders registered.

A comment on the Cat Bill and the registration of our cats. Over the first year after the regulations came into effect we have seen several Local Govt councils as being very organised and for the most part our members managed to register their cats, albeit at a high cost. There have been several councils who were just 'not ready' to deal with breeders. Whilst this has been ok until now I would sound a warning to our members not to let this slip, you MUST register with your local councils as a registered breeder and pay the price. Those council who were not 'ready' are now organised and looking for income to pay for their implementation costs. Mandurah and Kwinana are two councils who we have heard are actively seeking out residents who have not registered their cats and issuing fines. Armadale is aggressively following up complaints and demanding almost immediate access to inspect properties. PLEASE follow up with your councils and insist that they accept your application and issue you with a permit to breed cats.

2015 will be another exciting year and we again have a wonderful group of people who have nominated to oversee FCC on the Governing Council. I wish all our members a happy and prosperous Christmas and New Year and look forward to a very active and exciting show season leading up to the ACF National in June. I would especially like to thank our current Vice President, Linda Horton, Secretary, Sue Game and Treasurer, Pamela Lanigan for their support this year. Also a thank you to Rod Pattinson who has helped set up most shows and attends to the trailer and FCC cages.

Treasurers Report

Dear valued FCCWA members

2014 has neither been a very good or a very bad year for FCCWA financially. Our income is down on last year but fortunately we have also been able to bring our expenses down too. Income from day to day activities, such as registration, is up on last year but membership and fundraising show income is down.

Governing council worked hard to put shows on the calendar and fill spots not taken up by clubs but these have not been as well supported and income from such shows has been less than in previous years.

Whilst registration income is up on last year it is still clear that breeding members are not registering every kitten they breed. Most do the right thing but to those who don't please realise that we can see your kitten photos on facebook or your gumtree adverts. It is not a lot of money per kitten and it is what keeps our bills paid so that we can provide you with services.

Our association has purchased equipment during the year for our members benefit including cages, tables for shows and exhibitions and a TV for training seminars at the office.

We are now paying an honorarium for our office worker again. There are other roles in our assoc that are unpaid that require significant contributions and for that we are very grateful.

I would like to especially thank our chairperson and registrar Carole Galli for her contribution as well as our secretary Sue Game and Vice-Chair Linda Horton. Janis Thompson also deserves recognition for her great fundraising efforts during the year. Thanks also to our full council and to all members who helped out in 2014.

If you can help our association in 2015 with office duties, help at shows and with fundraising or even just sending in all of your registrations promptly it will make a great deal of difference to our association.

Regards
Pamela Lanigan

ACF National Show 2015

Have you booked your leave yet?

Every year the ACF stages a National Cat Show which attracts exhibits from all over Australia. 2015 is our year to shine and planning is already underway.

Make sure that you mark the dates on your calendar.

6th and 7th June 2015

The schedule is now out and it has a fantastic on-line entry option. If you know who you are entering, you can enter now. If you enter before 1 April 2015 you will get $10 off the cost so it is well worth it

Fundraising continues to be a big priority over the coming months. Please contact Janis Thompson or Michelle Rigg if you have any ideas or can contribute to the fundraising efforts some way.

There will be a Judges Guild Seminar on Monday 8 June, 2015. Topics are still to be confirmed the seminar will be of interest to breeders and cat enthusiasts alike. All members are eligible to attend the seminar so if you need to plan ahead to book leave off work for next year, consider booking Monday 8 June 2015!

The committee is working hard to put this event together and as we get closer to the date, will be calling on more members of CatsWA to participate in the planning. If you have particular expertise that you would like to contribute or have contacts of people or organisations who you think would be able to act as sponsors, have goods that they would like to donate as prizes or would like to run a stall on the weekend, please contact a committee member.

The Committee is made up of Carole Galli (Show Coordinator), Lucy Nikiforos (Show Manager), Pamela Lanigan (Show Secretary), Julie Pickens, Delaine Hall, Greg Connelly, Fiona Williams, Janis Thompson, Sue Game, Lee-anne Pitman-Pryde, Rod Pattinson, Linda Horton, Michelle Rigg, Maree Carle and our newest member, Michelle Harris.

We will need lots of involvement from CatsWA members including a team of people for set up on Friday 5th June so please mark that day on your calendars if you will be available.

Cat Act 2011

CatsWA continues to advocate on behalf of its members regarding the cat laws.

The $100 fee per breeding cat per year remains a major issue and the Minister for Local Government is unwilling to directly intervene even though both this Minister and the previous Minister repeatedly assured us that we were not the target. Instead, the responsibility sits with individual Councils, many of whom are saying that they are not resourced to manage the Cat Act, let alone make exceptions for our breeders. This is despite the fact that in many cases we are only talking about a few breeders in each Council area.

In May 2014, the Minister released a circular stating that Councils were able to reduce or waive the fees to certain groups of people. In theory should have given members a platform to negotiate with their local council. However in practice, this is only happening in a minority of cases.

As we warned the Department of Local Government, this has the effect of making people reluctant to reveal how many cats they have in the hope that they remain under the radar.

We must reiterate that it is important that you do start a conversation with your Council. The risks of getting caught continue to grow and registered breeders, though not part of the original problem, are easy targets. There are some Councils who are still claiming that they are not ready with regards to registered breeders and are telling our members to come back later. If this happens to you, I urge you to get something in writing. If the Council suddenly changes its mind and decides to challenge you for not having your cats registered, you are in a very vulnerable position.

What the bureaucracies fail to understand is that our breeders are great advocates for responsible cat ownership. They have been microchipping, sterilising and educating their kitten buyers to keep their cats inside well before the Cat Act came into being. On the whole, they have gone quietly about their hobby, breeding kittens for shows and for the betterment of their breed, with the remaining kittens being sold to help offset some of the costs.

The Minister for Local Government sent out another circular in February 2015 where he welcomed the initiative of some Councils to reduce, waive or cap fees. It will be interesting to see whether Councils take notice.

A new issue that has arisen recently is that at least 4 Councils that we are aware of have decided that our members are running a business. In some of these instances, this has resulted in breeders being told they may not sell their kittens from their premises. In general, this is coming from Planning Departments who seem to have little or no interest in the Cat Act itself.

We have written to the Minister for Local Government about this issue as we strongly believe that the majority of our members would fall under the Australian Tax Office's definition of a hobby. You can find information on the ATO website, or another useful source of information can be found here at the Small Business Development Corporation which also includes links to the ATO <http://www.smallbusiness.wa.gov.au/business-life-cycle/pre-start/hobby-or-business/>

Given the small numbers of Cat Breeders there are in the metropolitan area, it is hard to gain much traction on this issue, but we have to wonder what the impact is on other groups such as dog breeders and whether selling puppies attracts the same concerns from Council.

If you do find yourself in a similar situation, please contact me, or the CatsWA Office and we may be able to provide some reference material, including letters sent to the Minister for Local Government (along with any replies). Alternatively you can contact the Minister for Local Government, your local Councillor, the Department for Local Government and Communities or State Government representative and raise your concerns with them.

As predicted, this Cat Act 2011 has created a minefield for multiple cat owners, and particularly registered breeders. Individuals somehow have to navigate between the Cat Act 2011, Planning, Health and any other Local Government Department that decides to buy in, while back yard breeders and irresponsible cat owners continue to remain invisible.

Our best advice is for you to try and engage with your local council and let your Governing Council know when you have problems so that we can do our best to assist or advocate on your behalf.

TRAINING OPPORTUNITIES

Stewards Training

Pamela Lanigan will be conducting stewards training in 2015.

If you would like to become a steward, or just want a refresher before the National, please contact Pamela on 0419 940 025 or via email on cuddleton@optiic.com

Group 4 Judges Training

Expressions of interest in training to be a Group 4 judge are now being taken. Please email the office on fcc_wa@bigpond.net.au or contact Carole Galli on admin@roellencattery.com.au if you would like to know more.

To Carole Galli and Lucy Nikiforos who have completed their Group 3 training and had their first judging assignment at the CatsWA show held 22 February 2015.

Well done!

Pending paperwork

There are an increasing number of show entries that are being sent in with the registration pending. In normal circumstances your cat is not eligible for Cat of the Year Points unless you are registered with CatsWA and the show secretary may refuse entry to the show to an unregistered cat.

If you have already submitted your paperwork to the office or are waiting on a transfer from another registering body, please discuss this with the show secretary.

To minimise this, please ensure that you submit registration paperwork to the CatsWA office at the earliest opportunity.

Vacancies

CatsWA needs enthusiastic and willing people for the following positions:

Casual Vacancy on Governing Council

Due to a resignation on Council, we have a casual vacancy on Governing Council.

Council meets on the 3rd Monday of each month and is responsible for a wide range of decisions to keep the organisation running. Nomination forms are available on the CatsWA website. You must have been a member for 3 months to be eligible.

Office Helper

CatsWA is seeking someone who is willing to assist in the office for a few hours each Wednesday. General office duties including answering the phone, emails, memberships and titles.

Please contact the office or talk to a member of Governing Council if you are interested in either role.

DIVERSITY AND THE PUREBRED DOG

Or the Poodle and the Chocolate Cake

(This is about dogs, but could easily apply to cats)

John Armstrong

The Nature of Diversity

Think of genes as recipes. They carry the instructions for the various components that go into making up an organism. Each recipe specifies a particular component, and different individuals may carry different versions of the same recipe. (In the jargon of genetics, we say that they carry different alleles of a particular gene.) Individuals within a population often carry similar or identical recipes, for example, chocolate cake for a Poodle, lemon cake for a Beagle, and white cake for a Samoyed. A different canine species might be represented by a fruit cake. When you consider animals that are quite different, such as frogs and chickens, you will generally find "homologous" recipes, say for pies or puddings. Thus, there is more diversity among mammals than among carnivores, more among the carnivores than among the Canidae, and more among the Canidae than among the wolf group.

An organism carries a collection of recipes, and the collection defines the organism. The great diversity in the possible collections of recipes is the reason for the great diversity in the animal and plant kingdoms. The more closely related two individuals are, the greater the similarity in their collections. The number of combinations is huge, and during evolution, the recipe collection was undoubtedly reshuffled many times. The combinations that worked well survived and multiplied. Those that did not work quickly died out. In theory, one may make a meal of Champagne with tacos and Yorkshire pudding, but they don't really belong together. As time passed, exchange of recipes became difficult between animals that differed substantially in their physical and behavioural characteristics. Different groups, therefore, became constrained to work with only a subset of the total possible collection of recipes.

One definition of a species is that members of two different species bred to each other cannot produce a fertile hybrid. However, a more modern definition is that two species are geographically, physiologically, or behaviourally isolated such that they do not normally produce hybrids. Additionally, they should have features that differ sufficiently to allow them to be distinguished from each other. The domestic dog, wolf, coyote, and jackal can all mate with each others (barring size constraints) to produce viable and fertile hybrids. Yet, they have been considered different species (within the genus Canis) because they normally live in different places, behave differently, and can usually be told apart. (Though there has been a recent move to change Canis familiaris to a subspecies of Canis lupus.) However, a jackal will not mate with a dog unless they have been raised together from pups (presumably due to a learned behavioural difference). Furthermore, no Canis species can produce a hybrid with a fox. This is not because the kinds of genetic recipes are greatly different, but because foxes do not share the same number of chromosomes. (In other words, their recipes are filed under a different, incompatible system ÷ somewhat akin to filing one under DOS and the other on a Mac.)

Genetic recipes may get modified when they are passed on. Many of the modifications will make no noticeable difference, or only a very subtle one. Some may improve the recipe and others will not. If we are making a chocolate cake and a critical ingredient is forgotten, or the cake is baked too long or at the wrong temperature, we end up with a disaster. (If we don't understand what has gone wrong, we will likely throw out the recipe and look for a new one.) We may even make deliberate modifications in an attempt to get a more memorable cake. Among the "chocolate cake" population, there will be a variety ÷ or diversity ÷ of recipes and, therefore, of cakes.

This, I would say, is a "good" thing. Do we always want the same chocolate cake? Surely we will tire of it, and even if we don't, we lose the pleasure of anticipation. If, for some unforeseen reason, everyone suddenly loses their taste for THE chocolate cake, it will surely go extinct. To have the potential for evolution and adaptation, we must risk the possibility of the bad. That is the "cost."

In a large, naturally breeding population, we will end up with a number of versions (alleles), some so slightly different that we will never notice, some perceptibly different (but still functional), and some that just don't work at all. However, if we remove the diversity we lose the potential for evolution and for surviving unexpected change. To have the potential for evolution and adaptation, we must risk the possibility of the bad. Geneticists call that cost genetic load. This "bad" group persists because every individual carries two copies of every recipe, and often having just one "good" copy is enough for normal function. In most populations, every individual carries a portion of the load ÷ three to five bad recipes out of several thousand. The load is so well distributed that if two individuals compare their recipe collections they will generally not have two copies of the same bad recipe.

Loss of Diversity

Suppose we start a new population with only six or eight founders. (A number of breeds have started with that few.) We will get rid of hundreds of bad recipes, but the remaining dozen or two will be encountered much more frequently. Furthermore, if there are several good or excellent recipes, the chance of dropping one of these from the collection grows greater as the number of founders diminishes, and the risk of losing one remains high as long as the effective population size remains low. Working with small numbers will inevitably decrease the diversity, simply because individuals do not pass on their recipes equally to the next generation and some recipes are accidentally lost. This has the superficially desirable result of giving a more reproducible phenotype, but at the expense of an overall reduction in quality, health, and longevity.

If breeders had the ability to recognize each individual recipe and choose only those that were excellent, breeds could be produced with a small number of individuals that lacked genetic problems. However, what we see (the phenotype) is the product of all the recipes and, for the most part, we cannot distinguish the individual recipes. Moreover, we do not have the option of selecting recipes individually. When we select an animal for breeding, we are forced to accept a complete set. Even in those few cases where we now have a DNA test for a bad recipe (allele), we do not possess the ability to correct or selectively discarded it. We are therefore forced to work around it, or to discard the whole collection, with the attendant risk of discarding something excellent along with it.

The common practice of almost everyone rushing to breed to the currently-popular male show champion is probably the most significant factor reducing whatever diversity remains. Consider your own breed (the situation for most breeds is similar). Can you find one or more males that appear in most pedigrees? Almost everyone decides they like the recipes of (insert name) ÷ or at least the ones they can see readily ÷ and abandons other recipes with little thought to the eventual consequences. In a few generations, almost everyone has a substantial number of his recipes, though not necessarily his exceptional ones, and many excellent alternatives are very hard to find.

How precious is the individual that comes along with some of the missing recipes and relatively few of the "popular" collection? Do we hesitate because there are also a few bad recipes in this alternate collection? Are we now so accustomed to dealing with the more-popular collection that we have lost the vision of the "memorable" chocolate cake?

Population Genetics and the Breeder

What is often called Mendelian genetics deals with the outcome of specific crosses. Population genetics deals with the distribution of alleles in a population and the effects of mutation, selection, inbreeding, etc., on this distribution. As a breeder, you are a practicing geneticist. A knowledge of both Mendelian genetics and population genetics is critical, not only to your own success, but also to the survival of your breed.

Because many early geneticists believed that there were only two possible alternatives for a gene ÷ "good" alleles that functioned normally and "bad" alleles that didn't ÷ they expected to find little genetic variability in a population. The majority of individuals were expected to be homozygous for the good allele for most genes.

But with the advent of modern biochemical and molecular tools, geneticists studying populations found far more variability (diversity) than they had expected. There are a number of possible reasons for this, and even the experts are not in total agreement on the most likely reason(s). However, geneticists have also discovered that populations lacking genetic diversity often have significant problems and are at greater risk from disease and other changes in their environment. The conclusion is that genetic diversity is desirable for the health and long-term survival of a population.

Are purebred dogs genetically diverse? Some may regard that as a contradiction in terms. The very concept of creating a breed with characteristics that are distinctly different from other breeds implies a certain limitation on diversity. Nevertheless, within the standards for a breed, diversity should still be possible for genes that do not affect the essential characteristics that distinguish one breed from another. If, in order to maintain breed identity, one has to compromise on genes that relate to general structural soundness, good health, intelligence, and temperament, perhaps this breed should not exist. However, as long as these essentials are not compromised, I see no reason why one cannot have different breeds with different appearances and different talents.

For those genes that establish breed identity, there will be markedly less variability within a breed than within Canis familiaris as a whole. The tricky bit is restricting variability for those genes that make a breed distinctive without sacrificing the variability/diversity that is necessary for good health and long-term survival of the breed. In many cases, this has not been achieved, and we are now paying the price in terms of high incidence of specific genetic diseases and increased susceptibility to other diseases, reduced litter sizes, reduced lifespan, inability to conceive naturally, etc.

Why has this happened?

1. Many breeds have been established with too few founders or ones that are already too closely related.
2. The registries (stud books) are closed for most breeds; therefore you cannot introduce diversity from outside the existing population.
3. Most selective breeding practices have the effect of reducing the diversity further. In addition, the wrong things are often selected for.
4. Even if the founders were sufficiently diverse genetically, almost no one knows how their genetic contributions are distributed among the present day population.

Consequently, breeding is done without regard to conserving these contributions, which may be of value to the general health and survival of the breed.

Do we have to accept it as an inevitable consequence of creating a breed? I don't think we do.

A role for the breed clubs

Each breed needs a database with all the breedable animals recorded with all their ancestors back to the founders. This would most appropriately be the task of the breed club. Are any actually doing this (outside some of the rare breeds)?

Such a database would enable breeders to identify which individuals are most likely to carry the genes from each founder. At the level of the individual breeder, it would enable him/her to make intelligent, informed choices when selecting mates. Measures might also be considered to re-balance the breed, in order to ensure that the remaining diversity is more evenly distributed and that, therefore, there is less risk of loss.

TITLES

Congratulations to the following cats and exhibitors on the titles listed below which were approved at Governing Councils meetings November—January 2014.

Do you have Challenges and Awards of Merit stashed away at home? Your cats may be eligible to hold titles too. It's a nice way to recognise their show career. Each title requires 6 certificates in date order. Cost is $10 per title and for that you will get a laminated certificate to keep as a record of your cat's achievements. For an additional $15 you can purchase a title sash to display. More information about titles can be found in the CatsWA show rules

Watch out for Cat of the Year Points!

A progressive total of Cat of the Year points will be published on the CatsWA website following each show. Keep a track of your cat's progress and make sure that he or she is entered in each show to gain more points.

Cat of the Year points will not be awarded at the ACF National Show

Results of the 2014 Cat of the Year will be published on the CatsWA website on Sunday 8 March at the completion of the 2014 awards presentation.

Code of Conduct for all members

Did you know that CatsWA has a code of conduct? A code of conduct is really important because it acts as a guide and reference for all members. It helps to clarify CatsWA's values and principles and is a visible statement to the rest of the world what we stand for. Anyone who deals with CatsWA can look at our Code of Conduct and they will get a sense of who we are and what is important to us. Our Code of Conduct incorporates the standard of ethics that our breeders abide by and provides a reference point for Governing Council when they are dealing with any situations that may arise.

1 Purpose of the Code of Conduct

- 1.1 To provide members of the Feline Control Council WA (Inc) with a framework for appropriate conduct. This includes behaviour towards other FCCWA members, judges, general community members and cats.
- 1.2 The core principles that underpin the organisation must be the welfare of all cats that fall within the scope of FCCWA and the protection of the integrity of FCCWA pedigrees
- 1.3 Incorporated in this Code of Conduct is a Code of Ethics for all members who wish to be recognised as Registered Breeders. All FCCWA Registered breeders must agree to uphold and respect this Code of Ethics in their actions and dealings within the Cat Fancy.

2 General Principles of Conduct

General principles to guide the behaviour of FCCWA members include that all members must:

- a) Act with reasonable care and diligence
- b) Act with honesty and integrity
- c) Act lawfully
- d) Avoid damage to the reputation of the FCCWA (Inc)
- e) Treat others with respect and fairness.
- f) Abide by any rules, regulations or guidelines as determined by FCCWA (Inc) including Breeding, Showing, membership of Governing Council or any other activity. Such regulations will be available on the FCCWA website.
- g) Comply with the WA Cat Act (2011) and any other relevant legislation.

Looking for ways to get involved?

Why not join one of the clubs? FCCWA has several clubs, which are a great way to get to know people. Clubs run the shows and are always happy for people to come along and learn how a show works.

FUNDRAISING HELP NEEDED 12 APRIL

The Fundraising committee has been holding regular sausage sizzles which have been adding much needed funds to support CatsWA and our preparation for the ACF National.

We need helpers for 12 April in the Port Kennedy and Baldivis areas. Even if you can only spare a couple of hours we need you! If you can help, please email Janis Thompson on loveforeverragdolls@hotmail.com for more details.

Don't forget to keep an eye out on our website for news, updates and show schedules. Our kitten page, is an extension of the breeders directory, and helps to link those breeders who are registering kittens with potential kitten buyers.

CatsWA Breeders Directory 2015

CatsWA Registered breeders, please note:

If you would like to advertise in the Breeders Directory, please contact the CatsWA Office with your details. The cost for inclusion in the four issues of Catcall during the year is $15.00 per entry. Alterations and updates that occur during the year are accepted at no extra cost. If you do not appear in this list and you think you should, please contact CatsWA Office. Only breeders who have registered kittens in the last 12 months will be listed. If you have had a break in breeding but are planning to resume, please contact the office to have your listing reinstated. fcc_wa@bigpond.net.au
